Behind the controversy between General very assumption of general powers by the ad-

This was on the subject of conscription. The vice-president, Stephens, supported the state rights party and joined in the war upon In proof of this, a letter written Stephens in 1864 to Herschel V Johnson of Georgia, is published. This lefter has hereti-fore been referred to in our columns. Stephene said of Davis: "Since his first elevation to power te has changed many of his former state rights principles, as in the case of conscription. Ris whole policy—the organization and discipline of the army- is perfectly consistent with the hypothesis that he is alming at absolute power. Again, it is well known that the sab-ject of a dictatorship has been monted, talked of and discussed in private and in the public journals, and the most earnest advocates of such duda stration. These are lad signs. They should put the country on its guard." In the same letter Stephens spoke of Davis with ny much contempt as bitterness, decard him weak and fubbidle, but said he could have no more feeling of resentment toward him for these defacts than toward his poor old blind and deaf tenth of the people approved the acts of the ad-

There is a great deal of this correspondence in the captured rebel records. It shows clearly that the dectrine of state rights was beginning eoth was discouraged by the war, and that the Richmond government found it necessary for the greeral defense and welfare to stretch its powers to the ulmost. Doubless this necessity did much to create the impression that Mr. Davis was seeking to obtain absolute nower, and even to make himself dictator. The cor also slows that there was from the first to last a street feeling in many parts of the south agains; the original secessionists. When pub-lished in its proper place in the war records series t will open a very interesting chapter in the experience of the confederate government with the dectrine of state rights, and exhibit it as an element constantly hampering the goveroment and actively working towards, its over-

CABINET MAKING.

There is something extremely laughable in the recent meeting at San Francisco of the democratic state central committee of "California, to take action on the proposition of selecting a suitable person to represent that state in the cabine of President-elect Cleveland. To begin with there is no evidence that Mr. Cleveland wants anybody from the Pacific states in his c. binet. He has not, as far as can be learned, intimated a word to any fiving being that he will appoint of ever expects to appoint any citizen of the Pacific states to any one of the department portfolios. Compared with the older states the three Pacific stars on the national banner cut a very sorty figure, as they have less populahe liver in the empire city.

But we saggest as a compromise measure that Mr. Clevela of appoint Mr. Seikirk to a foreign nissum. Come to think of it, there is the past of minister to the island of Jerm Feyland and a Mr. Seikirk would be the right man further right place; and no one knows how well actually a protection citizens who might be the stop protection citizens who might be the stop rotection citizens who might be the construction of the solutions of the capital many that the citizens are the citizens who might be the stop rotection citizens who may be the capital many the citizens who may be the capital many the citizens who may be the series and the many that any time, or would not serie any built whenever the citizens who may be the capital many the construction of the capital many that the citizens who may be a compound to the capital many that the citizens who may be a compound to the capital many that the citizens who may be the capital many that the citizens who may be a compound that they were assured by the citizens who may be the charged his with being an an acceptance of T company the appearance of T company the capital man, acceptance of T company the appearance of T company the construction of the capital man acceptance of T company the capital man acceptance of T company the capital man acceptance of T company the capital man acceptance of T comp qualitied he is to protect one citizens who might bisk the shores made historical by the trend of Mr. Rel inson trusce and his man Friday. We don't know whether Setkirk would take the place if offered him, but he is quite as apt to got there as Flournoy is to become a minister of state guater the forthcoming administration.

This view prayled be strely correct, but there is make a fitting energial themselvisities of the southern people to support it. As a rule southern the bave been less appious to hold federal appointments that mythern men. There are recons for this in the conditions of Lusiness and society at the south. The influenthat chieses there are still, as before the war, the farmers, or planters as they are called, and the Exyreig. An one the planters there is still a feeling that it is beneath their dignity to be dependent upon public parranage, and eather than risk the suspicing that they could not support themselves, or we supported by their families, many of these couldern farmers prefer to live pretty economically. We have no large class exactly answering to them in the north. But 1 orthern farmers have never been much t ven to dire-recking. The most determined Although a large part of the wheal consumed updat for spoiss' has been made by men in the cities and large villages in the northern states, who are without the necessary capital to engage in business for themselves, and yet preer to ive to town. A position under the government is preferred by many of this class to clerkel ipsiin stores and banks or railroad offices, for pecuniary reasons in part, but more, perhaps, dendency of the southern states in the national councils was due to the custom of keep ug the The customest il prevails. If southern senators and members of congress had been as notice given to the dispensing of patrouage in their respective states as the senators and members from many of the acriberal states, they could not have preserved this valuable custom. No state in the Union has been from the first—from the time of Auron Burr, who was the original machine politigan of this country, so much disturbed by in a roportion to the size of its representation in congress have returned so few of its representatives a second time. The dispensation of patronage has been a source of weakness instead of strength. Where one man is pleased by an appointment, his ensuccessful competitors for the place are displeased, and so the senator or nember who dispenses the latronage makes nore enemies than friends. Before the war the southern people had a very powerful motive for trying to hold control of the federal administration and to maintain their ascendency in congress which was independent of their terest in the federal patronage. Their peculiar institution depended upon the predominance of their influence in the national councils, and everything else was sacrificed to that. The election of senttors and representatives was con-trolled by untional, rather than local considera-tions. They have not the same mative for sending their ables, and most influential men to ong their argest, and most impaential men to congress now, but the force of the former habit still ex sts, and it would require some bine, un-der the old system of appointments, before the adeptite of the exvis service rules, to change in Under he new asstem a change may never fully occur. In the of these considerations it may safely be predicted that the southern people will not rival the riviltical allies at the north in their struggle for federal appointments under the new admit istration.

The experience of the present winter is likely to benous frame one more an opinion long ago assisted by man, that, western Oregor was yet to be the country of cattle and sheep. It is The London Times, in its review of the events of the past year, refers to American affairs, and felicitate itself and the English nation upon the fact that the United States are not to have a preparency of American administration during the natiform Treat, such as Blaine would have given. The Times does not put the statement quite as plainly as this, but this is whatifs words distinctly imply. from the betnes of those who eat it than at any former per of of history, the price is lower than it has been before since 1780. In that year, says the New York Tribune, an average never since approaches until this year, only 35 shillings ex-aparter for British wheat, was recorded. But it is now evident that the year 1881 will record a lower agerge than that of the hitherto unparal-led year, § 780. It is interesting to note that the great d-pression more than 100 years ago was follow it closely by higher prices. William Pitt, in a communication to the "Annals of Agriculture," written in April, 1765, says that bar-ley that sold in Staffordshire, in the winter of 1781, at 28 d per bushel brought 78 24 per be in the winter of 1782. At the same time wheat subtribes and 108 od respectively, thats doubled in trice, and clover seed and hops more thin doubled in the same time.

Even the New York Tribune is willing to let the duty be removed from sugar. The interests of 15,000,00 visugar communers ought certainly to autweigh those of 500,000 sugar makers, especially as the government does not need the making establishments in the country, many of them very small ones. They have only $3,000,-620 capital sind employ only $300 hands. Their whole proceed, $3,000,000 bushels a year, is worth $5,20,000. It is therefore a very insignificant nif cant interest, one-half of it being states of M. bigan and New York. It It shows only about one-tenth the capital and gives one playment it only one-twentieth as many knods as the sugar making industries. And yet the most packers, the stock raisers and the ranch owners of the west and the dairymen of Iowa, Wis emsin, Illinois and Missouri are forced to pa, a salt tax for the benefit of the 1 desons engaged in salt boiling—and is estimated, has amounted to $27,-000,000 in ti e last twelve years.

pers have recently said much, there is an historical question of considerable interest. If the own known, chiefly through the sporrespections brought to light out of the appoint relief ageniver, that the confederate government, from a carry period of the war felts close, found itself budy hardfrapped with its own rightful destribed of state rights. The Richmond government wasterging measures for the support of the year which the states thought would be schoosive of their own rightful authority and powers. As a very early day both Governor Vance of North Carolina, and Governor Brown of Guorgia, be-gan to protest very holdly and sharply against ministration at Richmond. Between them and President favis there was a prolonged discusion, upon the conscription tall and its execution, and the habeas scapes act. Buth Varietian different were consistent state rights men, and there was nothing so minute in the transac-tions of the Richard government that trenched on the powers of the states which they did not immediately resent. Whenever the Richmond, authorities arrested citizens of North Carollina for any act, Vance promptis demanded that they be turned over to the sovereign state of North Cardina. He threatened resistance to the conscript act unless it was kept charry within pawers granted by the constitution. He gradicted trouble and resistance if the attempt was made to enforce the habeas corous act He took ground against general shipping laws which interfered with vessels owned by his state, and in a great variety of wars constantly reminded the Richmond government that it was only the creature of the states, and that it would not be allowed quietly to override any of their powers. Governor Brown had progressed so far in 1862 as to notify Lavis, that he might feel obliged to recall some of the Georgia troops is prevent them from resisting the confederate authority in the very presence of the enemy.

As can be surmised from the reports from points this gold of froot river, the snow plows and shovelers touch not accomplish much yesterday. About the middle of the afternoon the Northern Facific snow plow and reached a point thout fit in hies be ow Viouto, and two other plows were working burd this sale of 1, and above Wyeth. The wind blew a gale a f day, but the men kept resolutely at work, and are supposed to "hold their own." No reports were received after that from the three tr ins, neither one being close to a telegraph station.

Passengers in the snowed in train requested to be taken westward, so their train followed the Nortl ern Pacific sn w plow, Mr Buckley's train, with wood and provisions, being directly about of them. But these trains will keep close behind the snow plow, so that the shovelers and the passengers will be in easy reach of food, whether they tick or move shead. There was little fresh snow, lut the drifts were very bad again. A plow was kept running between Bonneville an l Wyeth, and it was hoped to prevent my formedable new blockades.

The gange at Multicomal Fails could do nothing in the face of the strong winds, and no progress was made at this point. Some smow fell west of Booser Book after inidnight, Wednesday and during resterday, and it drifted badly. A new crowd af sixty mer with picks and should left here yesterday alternoon, but had not reached Troptcale at days. Judging from this, there must be some heavy drifts between here and the samty.

LATER.

Reports received from mine to two o'clock last night show the wind about Bonneville is all ating and the temperature rising. The Northern Pre fic sinds ylow is expected to reach Bonneville by this alternoon. If it does, there will not be much difficulty with the combined forces in c earling whatever drifts may have blown over the track in the last way days between Bonneville by the alternoon. NEW YEAR'S AT THE Y M C A.

New Year's proved a gala day in the hetery of the Y M C A. Its pleasant, noviting and tastsfully decorated rooms were thrown open to the young men at an early hour. At half past I' the arrangements previously planned were perfected, and the ladies began to receive. Gentlemen of the recaption committee welcomed the guests upon their arrival, and excerted them through the apartments, and upon reaching the partor were introduced to Mrs. Emmons Arnolf precident of the ladies' auxiliary committee, who in turn presented them to other ladies of the auxiliary committee. The guests were then unhered into the chapel, boding used as a dump room pro tem, where there was displayed upon numerous, tables an almundance of the good things of this life. After fully assuaging the demands of the inner man, the guests repaired to the gymna—s un, an elegant half looks, finely equipped. The strains of moisic, as rendered by the Y. M. L. A. orchestra, drew a large audience, among whom we esome of Fortland's most prominent nearly. Seated on the blatform were men-bers. And it is defined to the control of the control of
